"And I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year: 'Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown'. And he replied: 'Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the Hand of God. That shall be to you better than light and safer than a known way.' So I went forth, and finding the Hand of God, trod gladly into the night. And He led me towards the hills and the breaking of day in the lone East."

Dedication

There are those artists who wish to supersede their work. Reminds one of T. S. Eliot's remark that many of the modern poets are more dominated by their worry about being poets than creating poetry. Wayne Green has always allowed his art to speak for itself, for he is dedicated to it and not personality. Therefore it is fitting that words be dedicated to him.

Few people know Wayne Green as a man. Perhaps this is as it should be: we like to think of our artists as excruciatingly sensitive, different creatures who struggle through life friendless and magnificent on their way to doom. This tender of thought becomes very heroic and very trite very soon. Certainly Mr. Green is sensitive, and if he is different, that simply proves he is not a coward. I have known him as being kind, gentle, practically inaudible, and a lover of the work of Thomas Wolfe. I often felt he had met Wolfe, been friends with him, or had somehow known the man who wrote the books. But of course he never had; he just made one feel that way, and made one care that he cared. His work generates the same strength; a masculine, yet almost innocent love.

I understand that Mr. Green is now ill to the degree that he cannot creatively use his hands. How painfully like prison such an illness must be to a sculptor. Yet he has been ill before and continued to work. And I cannot believe his present trouble will last. But these considerations are beside the point. Wayne Green is the most human person I know, whose personal truth supersedes any art.

The President's Message

Looking through the earliest Yearbooks at Wilmington College recently I came upon the edition of 1928. I could not help being impressed with the physical progress which has been made in the intervening years on this campus, in the numbers and variety of buildings, in the beauty of the landscape, and in the general make up and character of the Yearbook itself.

Yet in some respects no change has occurred. The Yearbook has always been known as the Wilmingtonian. Thirty-five years from now, when you leaf through this volume, let us hope that the enduring values and traditions of Wilmington College will still be reflected here. Let us hope that you will still know it as a college whose Christian tradition of liberal arts is preserved, where critical thinking and artistic creativity are fostered, where service to others is encouraged, where self-reliance and self-help are still cultivated and practiced.

Admittedly these things are hard to capture in measurable form or pictures, but a college is either mediocre because it honors more superficial values, or excellent because it strives towards goals worthy of lasting pursuit.

Music

Music at Wilmington College attempts to fulfill the dual role of study in the history and development of music as a part of the liberal arts and the study of music in performance. Courses are available for a minor in music. Lessons is applied music are open to all students. Activities planned for the 1963-64 school year include the College Choir, College-Community Chorus doing part I of the Messiah, and instrumental ensembles. Informal Friday afternoon Symposia are open to all students. The 1963-64 Artist Series will bring to the campus the Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers; Martial Singher, leading singing-actor of the Metropolitan Opera; the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, and leading dancers and Musicians of Korea.

WC Students Go to Trappist Monastery

A group of Wilmington College religion students will spend this weekend learning about monks at the New Melleray Trappist Monastery in Dubuque, Ia.

The May 11-12 retreat will be under the direction of Father M. Ansgar, retreat master at the abbey. Members of the Wilmington party will attend mass at least three times, including a special mass for the visitors. There will be four discussion conferences to help students learn about monastic life and its philosophy.

"The primary purpose of the trip," according to Dr. T. Canby Jones, chairman of Wilmington's religion and philosophy department, "is to acquaint religion students with life in a monastic order. None of the students are Roman Catholics and the experience will help them to understand the monks and their lives. The common conception of monks as quiet, withdrawn and serious is only one side; they also have a lively sense of humor."

Psychology

A standard program of course offering in Psychology has been devised and approved during this year, and three courses—Abnormal Psychology, Psychological Interviewing, and The Psychology of Vocational Adjustment—were given this year for the first time.

The standard program provides a two-year program in which five basic courses will be offered each year and six advanced courses will be given on an alternate-year basis. This will permit three modestly-specialized programs to be offered: General and Industrial Psychology, Child and Educational, and Clinical and Counseling Psychology.

Dean of Students Norbert Baumgart taught the new one-year course in Psychological Interviewing, and has agreed to continue teaching the course once a year on a two-hour basis.

A movie entitled "Individual Differences" and taped lectures by Karen Horney on "Can Human Nature Change?" and by Calvin Hall on "Dreams and Personality" were purchased by the department during the year, and materials for fourteen additional standard aptitude and achievement tests were added to the departmental resources.

College Ranks Second in Business Game

Wilmington College's business and economics students have come out in second place among nine schools across the country participating in a business management game sponsored by Indiana University at Bloomington.

Wilmington's team made total earnings of $1,696,000 for the imaginary "three years" of the game which began last October. Final quarter profits for the Quaker school totaled $295,000. The local team was third in earnings at the end of the "second year" of the game in March; it was first in the third-quarter report and has taken the lead in cumulative earnings twice.

Iowa Wesleyan College, leader throughout most of the six months of play in the Mid-America Academic Conference, won first place with "paper profits" of $1,774,000. Wisconsin State College at Eau Claire was third with $1,652,000.

Dr. Martin Giesbrecht, assistant professor of economics and business, one of the Wilmington team's advisors, described the game as a "terrific teaching technique for both students and faculty. It has given students an opportunity to see the workings of industry in our American free enterprise system and they have been able to meet local businessmen who served as advisors for the game.

"It has also stimulated interest in graduate school and winning second place has made Wilmington students proud of their accomplishment and the college's economics program," he said.

Dr. Evalyn Hibner, associate professor of economics and business, the other team advisor, termed the project "valuable because it demonstrated the necessity of determining long-range goals in business and the need for correlating policy decisions toward the attainment of these objectives. It also showed the wisdom of providing for some degree of flexibility in order to meet current unpredictable situations," she explained.

* * *

STUDENTS AT each of the nine schools in the conference formed teams which became operating officers of imaginary manufacturing firms last October. Each of the firms reported assets of $13 million and annual net profits after taxes of about $70,000. Every two weeks, representing a quarterly business report, each team submitted its current business decisions to Indiana University where they were fed into an electronic computer.

Other schools in the conference, in order of their final placings, were University of Southwestern Louisiana at Lafayette, Delta College at University Center, Mich., Denison University at Granville, Valdosta (Ga.) State College, Augustana College of Rock Island, Ill., and Rockhurts College at Kansas City, Mo.

Summarizing the results, Prof. L. L. Waters of Indiana said, "The nice thing about the game was that when the students did lose, it was their pride and not their pocketbooks that suffered."

The purpose of the department of history and government is both general and specific. In the broad sense, the department tries to give both depth and breadth to the student in his understanding of the past and his knowledge of the present with its problems and opportunities. Basic to such awareness is an intellectual curiosity that the department tries to encourage. In the specific sense, the department offers subject matter and guidance to those who plan to teach in the field, to those interested in law or government service, and to all who wish to play an active and informed role in political life.

Biology

Dr. Frank O. Hazard, Chairman of Wilmington's Department of Biology, has been elected a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, in recognition of his standing in study and research.

The letter accompanying his citation from Dael Wolfe, executive officer of AAAS, said in part, "I know that this expression of esteem on the part of your fellow scientists will inspire in you greater efforts in behalf of science and of its position in our civilization."

A group of Wilmington College physics majors visited Battelle Memorial Institute in Columbus for a tour of the laboratories and a session on employment opportunities at the institute.

Included on the tour were facilities for radiochemistry, metallography, fuel cells, joining metals, gamma irradiation, electron microscopy, ultrasonics and digital and analog computers.

Making the trip were students Jim Barrick, Newport, Tenn.; Dean Bernard, New Vienna; Young Chae and Yong Lee, both Seoul, Korea; Jim Chambers, Cambridge; David Cluxton, Martinsville; Warren Craig, Goshen; Don Donaldson, and David Griffiths, both Wilmington. David Knoll, assistant professor of mathematics and physics, accompanied the group.

$5,000 Given For Telescope

Two gifts totaling almost $5,000 toward purchase of a new telescope for the C. F. Kettering Science Hall were announced recently by the Development Office. The Esso Education Foundation made a grant of $2,500 and a similar gift came from Dr. J. H. Persinger of Washington C. H., a college trustee.

With the construction of an astronomical observatory on the roof of Kettering Hall, an advanced astronomy course will be reinstated at Wilmington. Frank A. Tener, '22, instructor in astronomy, will also use the instrument for research purposes. Astronomy courses are offered as part of the physics department curriculum.

Mathematics

Mathematics possesses not only truth, but supreme beauty—a beauty cold and austere, like that of sculpture, without appeal to any part of our weaker nature, sublimely pure, and capable of a stern perfection such as only the greatest art can show.

I regret that I will not be in on the victories that are to come; further, I have always believed that a person should finish what he starts and I am sorry to leave with the job not completed. I am, therefore, forced to admit that my philosophy is not consistent on this move. I will have to beg your pardon and say that I am being selfish. The Yale job is a tremendous opportunity for me and I feel that I have been working for thirteen years getting ready for next year.

Sincerely,

Jake Van Schoyck

Cagers End '63 Season With 11-7 Record

Wilmington's Quakers ended up the 1962-63 basketball season with an 11-7 record and a third place in the Mid-Ohio League standings. The Quakers were in the fight for the M.O.L. championship up to their last conference contest, which they lost to the eventual champions, Defiance.

This marked the best season record for Fred Raizk's boys since 1959 when they compiled a 12-7 mark. The season brought Raizk's record to 119-120 for his twelve years of coaching Wilmington basketball.

Rex Taylor, who incidentally was on the all-Ohio N.A.I.A. team, was the season's top scorer for the Quakers, averaging 23.3 points per game. Roger Reveal (17.3) and Ron Clark (11.6) were the other Quakers who averaged in double figures.

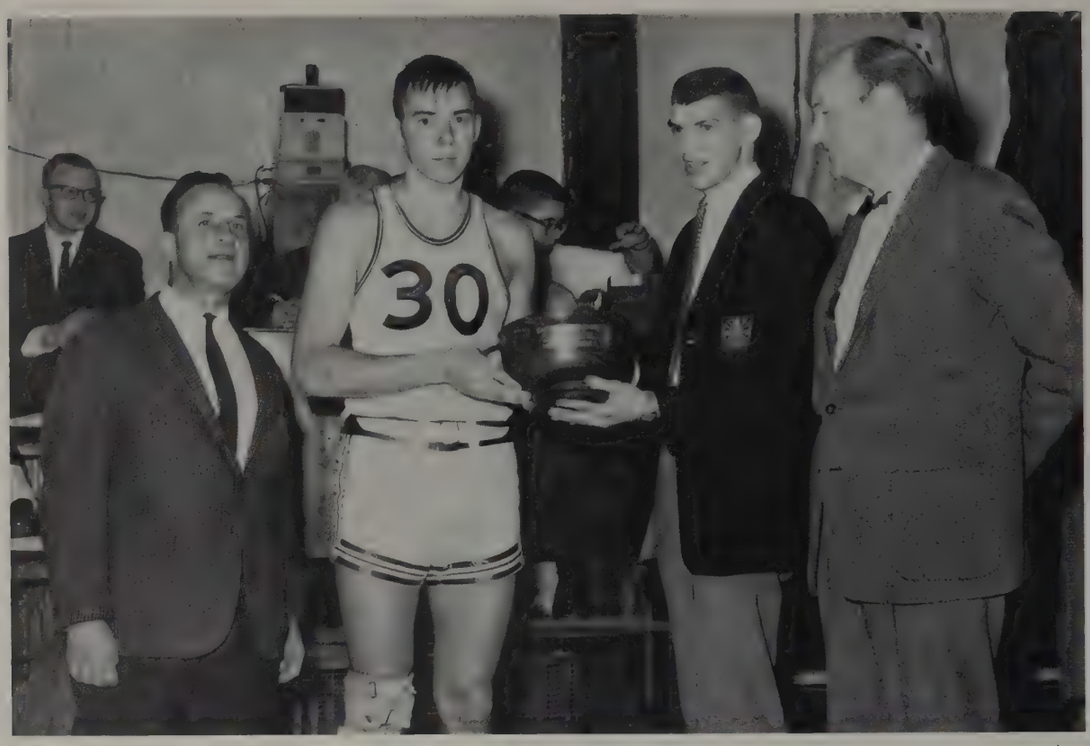
Quaker Bowl



Jim Chambers, Circle K Vice-President, awards first annual Quaker Bowl to Bob Brownell as Coach Fred Raizk and Dr. Read look on. This bowl will be up for contention during every Wilmington-Earlam contest in football and basketball.

Raizkmen Grind Out 2-4-1 Season

Playing its third of varsity competition this fall, the Quakers won two games, lost four, and tied one under the able coaching of Fred Raizk.

Having lost five valuable lettermen the prospect for a good season looked dim. However, with sufficient will and desire the team recorded a "successful" season.

Those team members deserving particular distinction are Gary McCarthy and Rocksy Sturtevant. Both of these men were elected to the Honorable Mention All-Midwest Team.

True disputants are like true sportsmen, their whole delight is in the pursuit

WILMINGTON 5, BEREA 4:

The Quakers opened the season by defeating Berea. Wilmington led all the way as Rocksy Sturtevant and Oliver Cooper scored five goals between them.

WILMINGTON 3, HIRAM 0:

This was perhaps Wilmington's best game of the season. Hiram never scored as Rex Taylor shut out the opposition in the goal. Sturtevant played his best game as he scored all three goals. Team spirit as the squad prepared to meet Kenyon.

KENYON 3, WILMINGTON 1:

The Quakers met the Lords on the away field, and although Wilmington held the lead through the first half the overall power and speed of Kenyon's attack was too much. Sturtevant scored the only goal for the visitors.

DAYTON 1, WILMINGTON 0:

A week later on the home field the Raizkmen met U. of Dayton in a fiercely fought classic. The game went into the final quarter scoreless on a very muddy field. On a freak play in the closing minutes the Flyers scored and held on for a close win.

OHIO UNIVERSITY 4, WILMINGTON 2:

The squad traveled to Athens to play one of the best teams in the midwest. Although outmanned, the Quakers played well thus necessitating an all-out performance on the part of O.U.

DENISON 5, WILMINGTON 4:

Back on the home field Wilmington ran up a nearly insurmountable lead on Denison's championship team. Rocksy Sturtevant led the way to a 4-1 halftime lead with three goals. The lead fell as the men from Granville centered play around Wilmington's goal. It was a disheartening defeat for the victory-hungry Quakers.

WILMINGTON 2, EARLAM 2:

In the season's finale the Quakers met their arch rival on Earlam's field. The game went into overtime as Mark McNeary and Rocksy Sturtevant scored the goals. Another overtime period was played with no change in the ultimate score.

On the Record

"The '63 track squad was hampered by one third of the boys being on work-study with conflicting work schedules. Though the team did not have much chance to work out together as a group, they did make a good account of themselves against some very stiff competition.

Prospects for next year look hopeful for an even more extensive track program for W. C.

Golf Team Wins N.A.I.A. Championship

The Wilmington College golf team coached by Fred Raizk swept to the district 22 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championship. Bob Brownell, a junior from Dayton, led the way with a score of 76, copping low medalist honors for the Mid-Ohio Conference and the N.A.I.A. district crown.

After Wilmington came Ohio Northern followed by Defiance, Bluffton, and Cedarville. The Quaker's victory earned them the right to compete for national honors in the N.A.I.A. tournament in Kansas City.

SEASON HIGHLIGHTS:

The Wilmington College tennis team in 1963 had its best season in recent years. Not only did the squad have a winning record of four wins and three losses, but had amongst its ranks the league champion, Rocksy Sturtevant. Brian Frock, playing third, reached the finals in his division. The Quakers were undefeated in four league matches. Outside the league they lost to three powerful teams, Xavier, Central State, and Ohio Northern. The team was skillfully coached by Dr. Griffiths.

Chambers anticipates return.

Mawer stoops to conquer.

1963 'Essais' Awards Given To Students

The 1963 Essais literary awards were presented in the lobby of Pyle Center for Students. First prize was awarded to Dale Woodward, sopomore pre-theology major, for his "A Peregrination Towards Meaning" group of 17 works, including both prose and poetry. Dale is the son of Mrs. Eleanor Woodward, Gillette, N. J. The prize was $100.

Randy Mawer, senior English major, Dale Shears, sophomore pre-med student, tied for second prize and $60 each. Randy was awarded for his one-act play, "Security Check," and his short story, "The Fence Between." Dale was honored for his short story ,"Itinerant Intent," and his poem "The Dust of Days."

Third prize of $40 went to Richard Murphy, for his "Like Aesop," a fable.

Receiving $20 each for their fourth prize winning entries were Anne Grover, senior, for two poems, "The Rain Has Gone" and "It is So Easy to Read the Words," and Margaret Alderfer, senior, for her three poems, "The Red-Masked Drake," "If You Must Leave," and "Please Go."

Honorable mention in the contest went to Fred O. Kiel, senior, for his poem, "Squirrel Lament." Tye Heckman, senior, for his poem, "No Bugles, No Drums," and Georgianna Palshaw, freshman, for her poem "Cabbage Beds."

This year, professors Fink, Gara ,and Wagner judged.

Students Return From 5-State Theatre Tour

BY RALPH SMITH

"Lord George knew my father,
Father knew Lord George..."

These gay lyrics were sung by Wilmington's "Taming of the Shrew" cast and crew through five states, interrupted only by seven performances in as many days, during the recent tour of the Shakespearian comedy. During the tour a total of 3000 people saw the production.

A chartered bus left the campus Wednesday, Jan. 23, at one in the afternoon and brought the roving band of players to their first stop, Olney Friends School, Barnesville, Ohio, in time for dinner and a seven o'clock performance that night.

After the show the cast spent the night in dormitories, and awoke the next morning to find that their bus was suffering from mechanical ailments and would be delayed. It was still suffering from the same ailments at seven that night, when another bus arrived to carry the group to a motel in Morgantown, Pa. A performance scheduled for that afternoon was cancelled by bad weather that closed the New Kensington High School.

The day's only casualty was chaperone Vernon Wills, accidently assaulted by a cup of scalding coffee, wielded by Ed Proske.

Three days, three states, four performances and a broken wrist (suffered by Billie Connely) later, the weary cast arrived at Atlantic City Friends School. After the performance the hosts gave a party for the players.

A performance scheduled for the next day in Baltimore was cancelled by time problems, so the caravan continued on to Poughkeepsie, N.Y., where the tour ended with a show at Oakwood School.

Heiland's Noble 23 then turned their faces westward and began the long trek home . . .

Workshop

In educational theatre, student workshop productions are very important. They give the student director an excellent opportunity to exercise his or her directing talents. The student director also gains a more technical insight into the art of producing a play, whether it be a full one-act or just a ten minute play. This year the workshops included two final directing projects and six first year directing projects. The workshop productions were very good examples of Wilmington College's theatre department and its final products. Listed below are the plays and their directors.

"Trojan Women" ..... Dorothy Swisshelm

"Antigone" ..... Ann Grover

"The Last of My Solid Gold Watches" ..... Joe Purrington

"Talk to me Like the Rain" ..... James Cassidy

"Lady of Larkspur Lotion" ..... Miriam Venger

"Lord Byron's Loveletter" ..... Bob Plotz

"One Sunny Morning" ..... Robert Scriba

"This Property Condemned" ..... Billie Connelly

Review Of "Antigone" Workshop Production

By Randy Mawer

March 17 saw the workshop production in Boyd Auditorium of Jean Anouilh's Antigone, a modern recreation of the Greek legend. The production, under the able direction of Anne Grover, was swiftly paced, exciting, moving.

The play is, in many ways, a biting denunciation of the Nazi regime under which it was written. It presents the essential conflict of freedom (personified by Antigone) and order (embodied in the dictator Creon). Both forces are stongly presented. Creon, though superficially despicable, speaks with a sincere belief. Antigone, though brave, is wilful and headstrong.

Miss Grover took a chance in her interpretation of the play, emphasizing the tragedy of Creon, a man forced by duty into acts he personally finds hateful. Strong and sensitive acting from Ed Proske made the approach successful. Billie Connelly (Antigone) turned in another excellent performance, ranting and stamping her way through another role which, done in any other way, would have been so sympathetic as to threaten the interpretation.

Tye Heckman was a nicely cynical chorus, Randy Bolton an amusing guard. Pam Smith was a bit young as Ismene, Antigone's vacillating sister. Bob Scriba struggled to make a consistent character of Haemon, Creon's son, but lost to the script.

The production, beautifully designed by Sherron Fox and Tye Heckman, showed no major flaws in the areas of acting or technical presentation. It was, with the possible exception of Fred Cahall's No Exit last year, the strongest workshop production I have witnessed on the Boyd stage.

Antigone will be performed again this Sunday evening at 7 p.m. in the McCoy Meeting Room of the Religious Center.

A NOTE ON LITHOGRAPHY, THE PROCESS WHICH MAKES A MODERN COLLEGE YEARBOOK POSSIBLE

—reprinted from the NEW YORK TIMES special advertisement by Amalgamated Lithographers of America, 9-30-62

"Art is long and time is fleeting." The story begins in the murky firelight of a Paleolithic cave, more than 6,000 years before the dawn of history.

Picture, if you can, a squatting, beetle-browed figure of loneliness mixing pigments of red clay, charcoal and manganese ash in the hot marrow of the bison he had killed on that prehistoric afternoon. His canvas is the stone wall of the cave—his subject, the beast he'd slain for food and fur.

What he left on the museum wall of his cave is the earliest known example of great art—a superb painting on stone. By its very nature, it was also the first lithograph.

There was something strangely prophetic about this solitary masterpiece, artist unknown. Ten thousand years later it was finally released from the cave by color photography. And today, this first lithographic art is reproduceable through the modern process of lithography with such fidelity that even the minute grains of stone and flakes of pigment can be revealed to millions of school children in an inexpensive art book.

"Time is fleeting." From the Stone Age of art to the Space Age of Communications lie a mere four million days. But the accidental mutation of talent which gave us the incredible deftness of that first cave painting has passed down through the chemistry of life in a succession of artists and a procession of art which has lifted man out of the cave.

A chain of tremendous events has changed this within two lifetimes. The first was Senefelder's almost accidental development of the basic lithographic process for the reproduction of original art—quickly developed by experimental artists to permit the reproduction of color art by the use of separate lithographic stones for each color, with one sheet of paper successively imprinted by each stone.

The quirks of destiny are fascinating. There is a wry irony in the fact that much of the world's great art during the past century and a half—and the very process of graphics reproduction which today is changing the world of visual communications—came into being from a laundry list.

In 1798, Alois Senefelder, a poor Bavarian writer, dreamed of being an earth-shaking dramatist. Having neither funds nor a publisher, he wanted to print his plays himself and was experimenting with methods of relief etching on stone. "I had just ground a stone plate smooth in order to treat it with etching fluid and to pursue on it my practice of reverse writing when my mother asked me to write a laundry list for her. The laundress was waiting, but we could find no paper. I hastily wrote the list on the clean stone with my prepared stone ink of wax, soap and lampblack."

Having stumbled on the simple principle that oil and water do not mix, this poor but clean young man reproduced the laundry list by the expedient of wetting the stone, running an ink roller over the surface and pressing paper to it. The result was destined to change the world far more than his plays—which were never printed.

Wilmington College's new $160,000 Thomas R. Kelly Religious Center was described as a "redemptive center which will affect all phases of our society" by Dr. D. Elton Trueblood, Professor of Philosophy at Earlham College, during dedication ceremonies for the building on Sunday, October 21, 1962.

"This building is meant to be a redemptive center—not a church, not a chapel, not a classroom building . . . It will be a place for people to come for spiritual renewal and then return to society . . . to save our culture from decay. This is what we mean by a redemptive center," said the Earlham theologian.

"The most important thing I can say about Thomas R. Kelly's book (A Testament of Devotion) is that it is the most eminent symbol of the new idea of Quakerism."

Climaxing the ceremony in Boyd Auditorium was the presentation of four honorary degrees to: Elizabeth Gray Vining, author and former tutor to the Crown Prince of Japan; Mrs. Emma Cadbury, Chairman of the Wider Quaker Fellowship of the American section of the Friends World Committee; Miss Elsie McCoy, active Quaker peace worker and former teacher at Wilmington and Earlham colleges and Friends University; James F. Walker, Chairman of the Friends World Committee for Consultation.

Ann Baird Is College Queen At Fever Day

Antique Car Show, And Other Events Draw Crowds Saturday

A 20-year-old pert brunette freshman from Mechanicsburg won the title of Miss Wilmington College during Fever Day events at the college Saturday.

Ann Baird, a farm girl who spent her girlhood in 4-H work and other farm organizations, received the floral crown and the $200 scholarship to modeling school from the Pat Stevens Model Agency in Cincinnati as top contender in the queen contest. She also received: $25 savings bond from the First National Bank, $20 gift from Clinton County National Bank; gift certificate and wallet from the Camera Shop, $15 gift certificate from Shiffs Shoe Store, bracelet from Hiatt Jewelry Store and two dinners at the Blue Grass Restaurant.

ANN BAIRD

Runners-up in the contest were Bonnie Struchen, Gnadenhutten senior, Linda Kay Wisbey, Loveland junior and Prue Brown, Berwyn, Pa., freshman.

In the other big event of the day Kip Roberts of Sabina won the best of show title in the antique car contest with a 1930 Packard Phaeton.

For the other car categories, the following winners were named: best original Model-T, C. M. Vickers, Midland, 1915 roadster; best restored Model-T, Walter Gilliam, Springfield, 1923 roadster; best restored Model-A, Elden Leighty, Dayton, 1930 roadster; best utility vehicle, Earl Downing, Dayton, 1931 Ford pick-up truck.

Best antique car 1911-20, Phil Tatman, Washington C. H., 1920 Essex touring car; best antique car 1921-25, Al Clark, Springfield, 1924 Buick roadster; special interest cars before 1937, Les Chapman, Cincinnati, 1931 Plymouth roadster; special interest after 1937; J. D. Bye, Siberling, 1938 Alvis; best original classic, Elden Armbrust, Washington C. H., 1926 Stutz; best restored classic 1925-30, R. E. Stockton, Urbana, 1929 Lincoln town car; best original car 1925-30, Granville Shoaf, Grove City, 1926 Cadillac.

ONE ENTRANT in the antique car race never made it, even though he worked all day to repair a burned out bearing. After traveling all night to get here from Cleveland, he developed trouble about three miles out of Wilmingotn. The car was towed in but was not running again until after the parade and contest.

One of the most unusual vehicles was a 1909 Model T owned by a Kentucky man whose father purchased the car new in 1909. The 54-year-old model still has its original upholstery and is used daily.

Johnnie Carr, superintendent of grounds and maintenance, termed the work project session in the morning a "good job by the stuents." The workers hauled away more than two tons of scrap iron near the maintenance building and about 5 tons of dirt to lay the foundation for a new walk between Friends Hall and Pyle Center for students. The crew also seeded bare spots on the lawn and did a general clean-up on the campus.

Neither the freshmen nor the sophomores really won the tug of war at Denver Williams Park in the afternoon since the rope kept breaking. However, Vernon Wills, secretary of the college, and several students were pulled into the pond after he tied one of the broken ends around his waist.

Jim Hornbeck, Dayton freshman, won the greased pig chase (which wasn't much of a chase since the pig was rather docile). He received a $5 cash gift.

Co-chairman Ray Mitchell, Springfield senior, and Wilfred Bowman, Troy senior, said the day was a "great success due to the cooperation of everyone, especially townspeople like the mayor, police department and fire department."

Local businessmen who donated prizes and money for Fever Day included David Adair Furniture, Jacques Sight and Sound, Murphy Theatre, Sheeters 5&10-Cent Store, G. C. Murphy Co., Wilmington Appliance, Vic Cassano's Pizza, Gene's Pizza, Sherwin-Williams Paint Store, Green and White, Famous Clothing, South Men's Wear, Camplins, Kaufman's Syndicate, Foster's Clothing, Wilmington Service Center, Uptown Gulf Service, Tom's East End Shell, Phillips 66, Keller's Cut Rate, Hale & Cotner Drugs, Brown's Office Supply, Hammies Snack Shack, Wilmington New Car Dealer's Association, Fairley Hardware and Mel-O-Dee Restaurant.

IN MEMORIAM

Frank Hazard: Alumnus, Teacher, Friend

In New Kettering Hall Office

"We can be deeply grateful that Frank Hazard devoted his life to something that will outlast him."

With these words Rev. Lorton Heusel, pastor of the Wilmington Friends Church, laid to rest a man who gave 34 years of service to his alma mater as a teacher, noted entomologist and friend to the thousands of students who had known him.

Dr. Hazard died at the age of 57 of complications from his long arthritic illness on June 15 at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. Services were held June 18 at the Reynolds Funeral Home in Wilmington followed by burial in Sugar Grove Cemetery.

"We gather with thanksgiving for having known him and his family," said Rev. Heusel. He cited the professor's "friendliness, integrity, friendly humor and characteristic gentleness."

"He communicated to his students not only a love for his own work but also, and more important, a love for life, almost a reverence for life . . . Life's meaning is not seen in the number of years lived but in the quality of those years . . . His was a life well-lived and well-invested," the pastor said.

AMERICAN SCIENCE FELLOW

Only this spring he added another honor to a life-long list of accomplishments when he was elected a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The letter accompanying his citation said in part, "I know this expression of esteem on the part of your fellow scientists will inspire in you greater efforts in behalf of science and of its position in our civilization."

A 1927 graduate, Dr. Hazard began teaching biology at Wilmington the following year upon the resignation of Dr. Sheppard A. Watson from the biology faculty in 1928. Dr. Watson left to go to Whittier College before returning to Wilmington as president in 1940. He is now president of William Penn College in Oskaloosa, Iowa. Dr. Hazard became chairman of the department in 1937.

He also served his alma mater as dean of personnel and assistant to the president under Dr. Watson. He had also taught at Whittier College during the summers of 1936 and 1938. A native of Wilmington, he graduated from the local high school in 1923. After earning his bachelor's degree here, he received his master's (1928) and Ph.D. (1937) degrees from Ohio State University.

In Zoology Class Laboratory

His studies on the effects of insecticides have attracted international interest to an insecticide testing laboratory which he maintained in Wilmington. In 1958 the college awarded him an honorary doctor of science degree and last spring the Gamma Phi Gamma fraternity, of which he was a member as a student, presented him with a citation.

He also recalled his power of attraction to students, "many of whom were not satisfied until they had taken all of his courses once they had taken one." The president remembered the student who said, "Dr. Hazard made his courses so alive," recalling the day he rushed around

. . . His influence on "the development of many community leaders because he demonstrates a unique ability not only to encourage young people to develop themselves to their greatest potential, but has likewise, challenged them to become men and women interested in leadership and service to their communities . . . "He took infinite pains with the individual and guided him into a love for the biological sciences," continued President Read. "He encouraged many of them to go into medicine and then saw to it that they entered good medical schools. There were many other facets to his life and to his contribution to Wilmington College, but these in my opinion are the greatest contributions that a man can make and ones that he did superbly."

Last fall he headed the campus drive for the local Community Chest campaign which resulted in contributions totaling $935 from members of the faculty, administration and staff.

"ONTOGENY RECAPITULATES . . . "

Thousands of students passed through his biology classes during his 34 years at Wilmington where he was recognized as a teacher with heart and humor. One of his biology quips offered to every class he ever had was "ontogeny recapitulates phylogeny" which means that every embryo passes through every stage of its ancestral development.

Dr. W. R. Pyle, chairman of the mathematics and physics department, perhaps summed up the esteem of the whole college family when he called Dr. Hazard a "master teacher". Said Dr. Pyle, "I knew him as a student and later as a splendid colleague dedicated to the profession of teaching. I am at a loss for words to talk about his passing."

Dr. Hazard was also president of the Clinton Construction Co. in Wilmington and a director of the Home Federal Savings and Loan Association of Cincinnati. His survivors include his wife, Barbara Brandon Hazard, x'37; two daughters, Rebecca Hazard Helton, '61, and Susan Hazard of Wilmington; a grandson; a niece, Barbara Hazard Wayne, x'49, of Bangkok, Thailand, and a nephew, Edwin Hazard, '57, of Valdosta, Ga.

Living Memorial Arboretum Set For Dr. Hazard

Upon the death of Frank Hazard, the proposed Hazard Arboretum at the college gained added significance as a living memorial to Wilmington's "master teacher." Letters were sent immediately from the Alumni Office to alumni throughout the country suggesting that they may wish to contribute to the memorial fund for the arboretum.

Several ideas for the organization of the arboretum have been proposed. The one which has found most favor among college planners is that it would be made up of trees native to Ohio.

According to James Terrell, x'44, Clinton County farmer who has been active in the arboretum project since it was first proposed and approved by the Alumni Council in 1960, "Examples of various trees and shrubs that were common to early settlers are becoming almost unknown to modern youth . . . Many stately trees are seldom planted; unusual ones like cucumber and pawpaw become more uncommon. An advantage of native woods is that they should do well with a minimum of assistance. A native wood could also be a regional identification for the college."

The arboretum is planned for an area of about 10 acres at the south end of the campus bounded by the Townsend Memorial Field stadium on the west and Faculty Drive on the east.

Gifts for the Hazard Arboretum now total about $1,000 plus a pledge gift of $363 from the class of 1963.

In Memoriam: MRS. OPAL WHITE BOYD

Mrs. Opal White Boyd, 74, wife of Dr. Oscar F. Boyd, Professor Emeritus of chemistry and former Vice-President of Wilmington College, died at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 2, at Clinton Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Boyd was a member of the Society of Friends. She belonged to the Yani Club.

She was born Dec. 28, 1888, in Platsmouth, Neb., the daughter of James O. and Ruth Clemmons White, and was married June 14, 1919.

Also surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Mary Ruth Custis of New Vienna; a son, Dr. Paul F. Boyd of Cleveland; a brother, Mark O. White of Athens; four sisters, Mrs. Lella White, Mrs. Hope Gibson, and Mrs. D. C. Laughlin, all of Columbus, and Mrs. I. H. Steffy of Hartville, and nine grandchildren.

Services were conducted Friday, July 5, at Reynolds Funeral Home, by Dr. George Bowman: burial was in Sugar Grove Cemetery.

As the college was so much a part of the lives of Dr. and Mrs. Boyd, we pay tribute to Mrs. Boyd here by showing her at her last official college appearance, Alumni Day, June 1, 1963. L-R: Ida McKay, Esther McMillan, Eva McCoy, Arthur McCoy, Opal Boyd, Oscar Boyd.

POEM FOR THE LIVING

By Theodora Kroeber

When I am dead,
Cry for me a little.
Think of me sometimes,
But not too much.
It is not good for you
Or your wife or your husband
Or your children
To allow your thoughts to dwell
Too long on the dead.
Think of me now and again
As I was in life
At some moment which it is pleasant to recall.
But not for long.
Leave me in peace
As I shall leave you, too, in peace.
While you live,
Let your thoughts be with the living.

M. Seasongood Gets Honorary

A total of 150 seniors participated in commencement exercises which included the awarding of one honorary degree by President James M. Read, to climax a full week end of year-end activities at the college June 2.

The number of graduates tops all recent years, except last year when 158 received their sheepskins, according to Eunice McCune, acting registrar. Approximately 1,200 persons attended the exercises held outdoors for the first time in history.

The honorary degree recipient was Murray Seasongood, noted Cincinnati attorney and life-long worker in the areas of state and local government. He was awarded the honorary doctor of laws degree.

James J. Nance, chairman and president of the Central National Bank of Cleveland, was commencement speaker. The morning baccalaureate services, held in Boyd Auditorium, featured an address from Henry J. Cadbury, noted religious educator and prominent worker for the Society of Friends.

Murray Seasongood, whose Good Government Fund has provided important speakers on state and local government to the campus for many years, told his audience of young graduates not to be overwhelmed in this time of unprecedented changes and perils.

EFFORT, NOT SUCCESS

"You should seek out some segment of worthwhile endeavor and go ahead with that as serenely as possible. The fields in which you can labor will be varied."

J. J. Nance H. J. Cadbury

"Any good effort," Seasongood said, "is worthwhile and is not dependent upon the assurance of success."

Commencement speaker James J. Nance pointed out to the graduates that the worries and frustrations faced by citizens of the U. S. today "are simply the price we pay for living in a world of great change and great progress."

He gave particular emphasis to the revolutionary changes being brought about in business and industry by automation. He said that the college graduate is not immune to this business revolution.

NANCE ON CULTURE

Nance listed three "evolving basic changes in our culture" which he believes today's graduates will see come about:

"(1) We are evolving beyond the assumption which has been a part of our culture since the days of the Greeks that civilization par excellence is that of the Western tradition . . . This change does . . . impose on us the difficult problem of how to become citizens of the world without uprooting ourselves from our native land and loyalties.

"(2) We are evolving away from the 2000-year-old assumption of the Greeks that logic and language are perfected instruments of analysis, decision making and expression . . . we will gradually learn to accept the fact that our symbols . . . are simply evolving human devices created by ourselves to help us cope with our experiences.

"(3) We are beginning to evolve away from the ancient philosophical assumption of a hierarchy of values in our culture. This ancient mode of thought taught us that there were some subjects more worthy of study than others and some types of work more worthy of man than others . . . we will gradually learn that every human activity and study is worthy of human attention and cultivation."

"Today's machines," he said "do precisely the kind of work which junior executives and skilled employees are usually assigned." He said that today's college graduate will find significant challenges and opportunities, however, within the distribution and marketing process.

Nance started his business life with General Motors Frigidaire Division where he rose through marketing posts to head division sales, and then entered general management. After World War II he headed Hotpoint, Inc. In 1952 he took over Packard Motor Car Co., which he merged with Studebaker Motors. Then he joined Ford Motor Co., where he consolidated the medium and upper-priced cars into a single division.

In the morning baccalaureate address, Henry Cadbury spoke of the motivations behind a person's good actions, questioning anyone's ability to associate his actions with his theological convictions.

He indicated that the evidence of Christian living is so widespread that no one could identify such a life with a particular set of doctrinal tenets. Drawing upon his personal experiences in the Society of Friends, and particularly in the American Friends Service Committee, he said that he is often asked, "What makes the Quakers tick?"

CADBURY ON QUAKERS

Cadbury said that he had given up the attempt to answer this question, feeling that a uniform answer would be inadequate. "You'll have to try it," he told the graduating class. "Try the good deed first, and then examine your reasons."

Three of the graduates received magna cum laude degrees (cumulative academic averages of 3.70 to 3.99).

These were Sherron Tichborne Fox, New Castle, Pa.; Fred O. Kiel, Cincinnati, and Vivian Lee Naff, Snohomish, Wash.

Eleven were cum laude graduates (point averages of 3.40 to 3.69). These were Tom P. Abeles, Louisville, Ky.; Jo Anne Dunlevy, Fresno, O.; Honey Lou Zimmerman Brewer, Wilmington; Ralph F. May, Waverly, O.; Wauneta M. Peacock, Danville, Ind.; Linda Lee Pence, Lynchburg, O.; Joseph F. Provost, Washington C. H., O.; Ronald R. Reid and Daisy Mae Slusher, both Georgetown, O.; Paul E. Westbrook, Mowrystown, O.; and David E. Yockey, Sardinia, O.

Among the special guests at the 87th annual commencement program was Bertha Carey Peele, x'03, who had attended the college's first commencement in 1876 at the age of six months. She was present to watch her granddaughter, Mary Robinson Jackson, Bellefontaine, receive her degree.

Commencement Held First Time Outside

Wilmington College held its annual commencement exercises outside this year on June 2 for the first time that any local historians can recall since the college was founded in 1870.

The program took place on the central campus directly behind the Simon Goodman Memorial Carillon. Folding chairs were set up under the spreading maple trees which shade this area of the campus. The program had been scheduled for Boyd Auditorium but plans were changed when a large number of the 150 graduating seniors petitioned President James M. Read to have an outside event.

Dr. Oscar F. Boyd, '11, emeritus professor of chemistry and official college historian, says the closest thing to an outside commencement previously was in the years before 1920-21 when the program was held in the old Yearly Meeting auditorium. This was a solid roof structure with open sides where the Meeting held summer functions with natural air-conditioning.

WILMINGTON COLLEGE CHAIRS

● Beautiful and Practical

This trio of Wilmington College chairs combines beauty and dignity in its design. Each chair is finished in dull black, with rings of gold on legs and rungs. Each is of solid birch construction. The Adult Arm Chair comes either with black or cherry arms in natural finish. Each of the three chairs has the official Wilmington College seal set in gold.

● For Office or Home

The official chairs fit either a traditional or contemporary decor and are equally at home in living room, library, study, television room, dining room or office. They can be ordered now by sending in the order blank on this page. You will find all three Wilmington College chairs comfortable as well as attractive.

Orders placed as soon as checks are received by Wilmington College Alumni Office. Within two weeks shipment will be made from Gardner, Mass., express charges collect. Add state sales tax of three per cent (3%) if you live in Ohio.

The Spectator

The Spectator, a modest magazine of satire, spoof, and friendly wisdom, passed through a rather uneventful year, its second at Wilmington College. Under the editorship of Fred O. Kiel and Randy Mawer, the dittoed publication was issued more or less fortnightly during the second semester.

Besides those of its editors, contributions by Robert White, late of W.C., and Kathy Danzig were published in various issues. Mr. White, writing from Iowa City, gave this year's Spectator a broadened and somehow more relaxing format than that of the past.

Technical assistance was rendered upon occasion by Vivian Naff, Sherron Fox, and Patrick Lytle.

The goal of the Spectator has always been to gently ridicule the eminently ridiculous, especially that indigenous to Wiltingham, a fictitious institution of learning somewhere in the Midwest, and to utilize to its fullest the glorious mother tongue.

Illumination Night, one of the major events of the year, began at 7 p.m. last Saturday night with the royal processional. The royal retinue was led by attendants from the four classes. Following them came last year's queen, Shirley Pollock. She was followed in turn by this year's queen, Karen Bunnell, and her escort, Gene Deffenbaugh.

The ceremonies began as Miss Pollock crowned Miss Bunnell Queen of May. President Read made a few welcoming remarks to the audience.

Then James Mak, president of the Student Senate, directed the presentation of awards, which were as follows:

DEPARTMENTAL AWARDS

Agriculture Scholarship Award to Dale Minnich.

Art Department Awards to Alice McMann, Lois Maughan, and Gretchen Oswald.

Business and Economics Awards to George Cooper, graduate in mid-year and presently at U. of Michigan, and Joseph Provost (Wall St. Journal Award).

Chi Beta Phi Science Awards to Wilfred Bowman and Judy Doyle.

Phi Alpha Theta History Award to Vivian Naff.

Industrial Education Department Awards to Bill Bunnell and Bob Domer.

Mathematics Scholarship Award to Thomas Berg.

Physics Achievement Award to David Cluxton.

The traditional Candlelight Parade and the Alma Mater followed the presentation of awards. Ceremonies ended with the Recessional, led by Queen Karen Bunnell and her escort.

1963 Enrollment Sets New Record

The second semester enrollment of 755 students sets an all-time record for a winter semester, according to Eunice McCune, acting registrar.

The record enrollment includes 547 men and 208 women. By classes the total reflects 262 freshmen, 223 sophomores, 102 juniors, 123 seniors, and 45 special students.

Wilmington's last second semester record was set last year when the total was 709. Total figures for other recent years were 670 in 1961, 654 in 1960, 663 in 1959, and 681 in 1958, the highest year before 1962.

"The La[illegible]arie"

By Peter W. Drake

Many things of in[illegible] have taken place these last few weeks on Wilmington's campus. The editorship of the Wilmingtonian is now v[illegible]. The Greeks have had their annual open house and Lear's "Wild Duck" has been through several performances with marked improvement, considering the rate of illness in the cast. With the International Festival coming up, the general level of activity should rise instead of lower in the coming weeks.

As for the International Festival, one of the most interesting features on the agenda is Stephen Spender. After having read the section devoted to Mr. Spender in The God That Failed, I feel that it would behoove each and every student to read at least this one section to prepare himself for the possible discussions he or she will have with him.

It is a most informative account of those who were attracted to the Communist Party only to become dissatisfied or repulsed by it and forced to bear the social stigma the rest of their lives for their accidental membership. "Africa for the Africans" Soapy Williams is also going to be here for the International Festival, speaking on the theme, The Emerging Nations of Africa." He is the second representative of a soap manufacturer to be on campus in the past few weeks.

All and all, the International Festival should be as enjoyable as ever. We should if at all possible, encourage many people to go, for it looks to be one of more interesting fields of interest to have yet been covered by such an affair.

Nancy Summers, for general assistance.

Wilmington News-Journal, for photographic assistance.

*****

It is our hope that the '63 Wilmingtonian will be a source of enjoyment to you. The book should be a picturing of student life on our campus, in its best aspects. All photographic contributions are welcome for the '64 edition. Our address is Box 6 PCFS. Thank you for the privilege of presenting the present volume to you.

May it meet with your satisfaction.
